

The Divorce Company

Helping Individuals to Take the High Road through Divorce.

Initial Individual Consultation

The undersigned has/will attend a initial consultation to obtain general information about Divorce and to understand how divorce mediation works in an attempt to determine whether their case would be a good fit for mediation

The undersigned agrees that the meeting is not intended to advise the undersigned about a particular course of action, but rather to focus on the appropriateness of mediation in their circumstances, the mediation process, and to answer general questions about divorce – financial, legal, psychological.

The Divorce Company works with couples to resolve their issues. It does not represent single individuals. Initial consultations are to help individuals get up to speed quickly on a variety of topics including assets division, child support, spousal support, and parenting. It is also used so that individuals can assess if mediation or arbitration is right for them.

The cost for the initial consultation meeting is $290 + GST/hour. I agree to pay ½ of the cost of a missed or cancelled meeting with less than 24 hours notice.
